Handbook on the Geographies of Energy

Edited by Barry D. Solomon, Professor Emeritus, Department of Social Sciences, Michigan Technological University, US and Kirby E. Calvert, Assistant Professor, Department of Geography, University of Guelph, Canada

This extensive Handbook captures a range of expertise and perspectives on the changing geographies and landscapes of energy production, distribution, and use. Combining established and emerging scholarship from across disciplines, the expert contributions provide a broad overview of research frontiers for the changing geographies of energy worldwide. Interdisciplinary in nature and broad in scope, it serves to answer a range of questions and provide the reader with conceptual and methodological foundations.

'An intellectual cornucopia for geographers and indeed all others concerned about energy sustainability. Featuring an all-star roster of scholars and covering a mix of interdisciplinary topics spanning energy fuels, landscapes, justice, politics, and ecology, it belongs on the bookshelf of every energy analyst.'

– Benjamin K. Sovacool, University of Sussex, UK and Aarhus University, Denmark
