Preamble

Through the joint efforts of teachers and students, the University of Klagenfurt is committed to promoting the creativity and independent thinking and behaviour of its students and expects the students to take a high level of responsibility for themselves. In its scientific programmes of study, which facilitate scientific understanding, qualification for professional activities and continuing education through additional programmes of study and continuing education programmes, it provides education through science on the basis of research-oriented teaching. The University of Klagenfurt strives to offer its graduates a science-driven framework in a constantly changing environment, to encourage its students to carry out their own research and to enable them to seek and find answers to important questions related to future developments in all aspects of life. It models itself on the paradigm of the community of teachers and students as an integral part of academic education: teachers, students and administrative staff exercise their rights and responsibilities in partnership and cooperation and treat each other with mutual respect. The rights of students are listed in particular in Section 59 of the Universities Act; those going beyond this are defined in this statute.

Ensuring good scientific practice

Members of the University of Klagenfurt must comply with the latest version of the regulations stipulated in the ‘Code of Conduct (Code of Conduct of the Alpen-Adria-Universität to ensure good scientific practice)’.
Section 1 Structure of the academic year and admission periods

(1) By decree, the Senate must establish the teaching weeks and the period during which programmes are not held in such a way that the academic year has at least 30 teaching weeks and each semester has at least 14 teaching weeks. An uninterrupted period of at least eight weeks during which courses are not held should be provided once each academic year.

(2) In accordance with Section 61, Paragraph 1 of the Universities Act, admission to a Master’s degree programme for which no special admission or entrance procedures are provided can also take place outside the general admission period and extension period at the student’s request, as long as the Bachelor’s degree programme at the University of Klagenfurt is completed outside this period and the request for admission is made immediately after completion of this Bachelor’s degree programme. For the Master’s degree programme, this must relate to a relevant Master’s degree programme. The semester in which admission to the Master’s degree programme takes place shall be counted as the first semester of the Master’s degree programme.

(3) For all foreign nationals and stateless persons not covered by Section 61, Paragraph 3 of the Universities Act, an alternative special admission period shall be established. This shall expire every calendar year on 5 September for applications for the winter semester and on 5 February for applications for the summer semester. Complete applications must be received by the University of Klagenfurt before the end of this period.

In the event of a structural amendment, the obligation for transitional provisions in accordance with Section 8 must be taken into account.

(1) It must be stipulated in the curriculum that degree students shall be able to complete their programme of study as of the date of entry into force of a structurally amended curriculum in accordance with the previously applicable regulations within a period corresponding with the intended duration of study plus at least one semester. In programmes of study with study phases, this provision shall apply per study phase. The provisions of Section 124 of the Universities Act shall remain unaffected by this.

(2) In cases of particular hardship, the Rector of Studies can also, upon the request of the student, extend the period in accordance with Paragraph 1.
(3) In the event of non-structural amendments, all degree students shall be subjected to the amended curriculum from the time at which it enters into force.

(4) If the programme of study is not completed within the appointed period in accordance with Paragraph 1, the students shall be subjected to the amended curriculum for the further programme of study. Furthermore, these students shall be entitled to voluntarily subject themselves to the amended curriculum at any time.

(5) Specific regulations related to the equivalence of examinations that have been passed as part of the previously applicable and amended curriculum are to be established in the curriculum.

Section 8a Complementary programmes

(1) Complementary programmes are degree programmes whose purpose is to extend a teacher qualification programme completed at an Austrian university as a Diploma programme, a Bachelor’s programme worth at least 240 ECTS credits or a Master’s programme with an additional subject or several subjects or specialist modules. The same applies to Bachelor’s programmes worth at least 240 ECTS credits and Master’s programmes that have been completed at a University College of Teacher Education in conjunction with a university (jointly arranged programme of study). Admission to a complementary programme can also take place prior to the teacher qualification programme whose extension it serves.

(2) Admission and registration as a continuing student on a complementary programme for a teacher qualification Diploma programme require registration as a continuing student or the completion of the Diploma programme whose extension it serves. In the event that admission to a teacher qualification Diploma programme expires before its completion, admission for the complementary programme(s) shall also expire at the same time. Admission to the final Diploma examination in the complementary programme requires full completion of a teacher qualification Diploma programme. It concludes with a Diploma examination before a committee, which comprises teaching methodology as well as another subject (with the exception of teaching methodology). Admission to the Diploma examination requires full completion of all coursework designated in the curriculum in question. The writing of an additional Diploma thesis is not required. Such admission is possible until the 2016/2017 academic year at the latest.

(3) Admission and registration as a continuing student on a complementary programme for a teacher qualification Bachelor’s programme requires registration as a continuing student or the completion of the Bachelor’s programme worth 240 ECTS credits whose extension it serves. In the event that admission to a teacher qualification Bachelor’s programme expires before its completion, admission for the complementary programme(s) shall also expire at the same time. Completion of the complementary programme for a teacher qualification Bachelor’s programme requires full completion of a teacher qualification Bachelor’s programme. The writing of an additional Bachelor’s thesis is not required.

(4) Admission and registration as a continuing student on a complementary programme for a teacher qualification Master’s programme requires proper registration as a continuing student or the completion of the Master’s programme, whose extension it serves. In the event that admission to a teacher qualification Master’s programme expires before its completion, admission for the complementary programme(s) shall also expire at the same time. Admission to the Master’s examination before a committee in the complementary programme requires full completion of a teacher qualification Master’s programme. The Master’s examination is an examination before a committee and comprises a subject area from the subject chosen and/or the specialist topic chosen. The writing of an additional Master’s thesis is not required.

(5) A certificate shall be drawn up to document the completion of a complementary programme. The completion of a complementary programme does not provide any entitlement for the awarding of an additional academic degree.

Section 9 Subjects

(1) Subjects are study areas whose contents and methods are, as a general rule, taught through several related courses.

(2) Required subjects are subjects significant to a degree programme, for which examinations must be taken.

(3) Electives are subjects that the students are able to select according to the regulations of the curriculum. For all programmes of study, with the exception of teacher qualification programmes, double degree programmes and joint degree programmes, electives worth at least 20 percent of the total number of ECTS credits must be provided.

(3a) No longer applies (university bulletin of 07/02/2018)

(4) Options are courses that can be freely chosen from a range of course offerings at recognised Austrian or international universities. Courses that were completed in order for the student to be entitled to study in accordance with the Entitlement to Study Act or to gain general or special eligibility for university admission (Section 64, Paragraph 2 and Section 65, Paragraph 1 of the Universities Act) are excluded from this. In the case of courses that have been completed at other recognised Austrian or international post-secondary educational institutions, the responsible university body shall decide whether recognition as an option makes sense academically or with regard to professional activities for the chosen programme of study. For all programmes of study, options worth at least 5 percent of the total number of ECTS credits are required.

(5) For teacher qualification programmes, separate regulations are to be specified in the curricula which shall apply to the structuring of the curriculum (modules), the extent of the electives or optional modules and the options.

Section 9a Complementary curricula no longer applies (university bulletin 07/02/2018)
Section 10 Courses

(1) Lectures (LE) are courses by which knowledge is transferred by means of talks given by lecturers. The examination takes place in a one-off (written and/or oral) examination. Students are entitled to take lecture examinations up until the end of the semester following the one in which the course takes place.

(2) Courses with ongoing assessment are courses in which the assessment does not take place in a one-off examination, but on the basis of written and/or oral contributions by the participants. If, in the framework of a course with ongoing assessment, a Bachelor’s thesis or seminar paper or a paper requiring a comparable degree of effort is to be written, it is possible to hand in the paper for courses taking place in the winter semester up until the following 30 June; for courses taking place in the summer semester, this is possible until 31 January of the following year. For written papers (Bachelor’s theses, seminar papers, introductory seminar papers or papers requiring a comparable degree of effort), oral or written feedback is to be offered to students.

(3) Tutorials (TU), which are led by qualified students, are not courses but rather supervision sessions that accompany courses.

(4) The Rector of Studies is able to approve the holding of courses which only take place during part of the semester, but with a corresponding increase in the number of weekly hours (block courses) as long as there are important reasons to do so and the necessary rooms are available. In university courses, there is generally the opportunity to hold block courses. Further regulations for block courses, in particular for preliminary discussions, upper limits for blocks and block-free times shall be issued by the Rector of Studies.

(5) For courses with a limited number of participants, it must be ensured in accordance with the budget that the study time does not increase for students whose application to attend has been deferred (Section 58, Paragraph 8 of the Universities Act).

(6) The teachers of the courses must provide information in a suitable manner about the contents, methods, assessment criteria and examinations of their courses and the contents, methods, assessment criteria and examinations of the course in the electronic course registration system (ZEUS) prior to the start of each semester (Section 76, Paragraph 2 of the Universities Act). If the assessment of a course does not take place in accordance with the specified criteria and measures, this shall be regarded a serious deficiency within the meaning of Section 79, Paragraph 1 of the Universities Act.

Section 11 Lecture examinations – course examinations in accordance with Section 10, Paragraph 1

(1) Lecture examinations serve as proof of the knowledge and skills that have been taught via the lecture in question. They shall be held by the teacher of the course. If required, the Rector of Studies shall bring in another suitable examiner.
(2) If an application from a student for a different examination method due to a long-term disability in accordance with Section 59, Paragraph 1, Line 12 of the Universities Act is not immediately granted by the examiner or the chair of the examination committee, the Rector of Studies must, after consulting the student and examiner or the chair of the examination committee, decide prior to the examination whether the prerequisites of Section 59, Paragraph 1, Line 12 of the Universities Act have been met. If a different examination method is authorised, the examiner or the chair of the examination committee must arrange implementation of the examination that has been modified correspondingly.

Section 12 Modular examinations, comprehensive examinations and overall assessment

(1) Modular examinations are examinations that serve as proof of knowledge, skills and expertise in a subject. Comprehensive examinations are examinations that serve as proof of knowledge, skills and expertise in more than one subject.

(2) Modular examinations are to be performed as individual examinations (by individual examiners) or as examinations before a committee (by examination committees). Comprehensive examinations are to be performed as examinations before a committee (by examination committees). In order to hold modular examinations and comprehensive examinations, the Rector of Studies must involve the university teachers, whose experience of teaching comprises the subject in question.

(3) The Rector of Studies shall also be entitled to bring in persons with equivalent teaching experience from a recognised Austrian or international university in order to hold these examinations.

(4) If required, the Rector of Studies shall, in addition, be entitled to involve academic staff and other qualified experts as examiners.

(5) For modular examinations and comprehensive examinations before a committee, the Rector of Studies must form examination committees. A committee must be made up of at least three members, whereby – in the case of comprehensive examinations – one examiner must be provided for each examination subject or its particular area. One member is to be appointed chair of the examination committee.

(6) Consultation about the result of an examination taken before an examination committee must take place in a closed session of the examination committee, whereby – in the case of comprehensive examinations – each examination subject shall be assessed individually. The decisions made by the examination committee shall be made using a voting majority; the chair shall be last to vote. Each member must also consider the general impression of the examination when voting about the result in the individual subjects. In the event that the majority of assessments are failed, the subject shall be failed.
(7) If the examination committee is unable to form a majority decision about the assessment of a subject, the arithmetic average of the assessments proposed by the members is to be formed, whereby a result greater than x.5 shall be rounded up.

(8) If several examinations are to be taken in one subject, the subject grade from the performance assessments weighted with the ECTS credits shall be determined. Results greater than x.5 shall be rounded up. In the event of Diploma degree programmes, results shall be weighted based on the number of semester hours.

(8a) On the occasion of the completion of a Bachelor’s, Diploma or Master’s degree course, an overall assessment shall be provided in addition to the assessments of the individual subjects and any academic papers. The general assessment shall be deemed to be “passed” if every subject and any academic papers have been passed. The overall assessment shall be deemed to be “passed with distinction” if none of the mentioned coursework has received a worse assessment than “good” and at least half of the coursework has received the assessment “excellent”. If the programme of study in question stipulates a final examination, the assessments of the individual subjects of the overall assessment should also be taken into account when determining the overall assessment. These rules shall also apply when determining the overall assessment of the first study phase of the terminated teacher qualification Diploma programme.

(8b) If, in a Doctoral degree programme, the thesis has been assessed as “excellent” and the viva has been assessed as “good” or higher, the overall assessment shall be “passed with distinction”. Otherwise, the overall assessment shall be “passed”, as long as the viva is passed. If a Doctoral degree programme concludes with a comprehensive Doctoral examination, the assessments of the two subjects are to be taken into consideration when determining the overall assessment, in addition to the assessment of the thesis. The overall assessment shall be deemed to be “passed with distinction” if the thesis and one subject have been assessed as “excellent” and the other subject has been assessed as “good” or higher. Otherwise, the overall assessment shall be “passed”.

(8c) On the occasion of the completion of a continuing education programme, an overall assessment shall be provided in addition to the assessments of the individual subjects and any academic papers (Master’s thesis). The general assessment shall be deemed to be “passed” if every subject and any academic papers (Master’s thesis) have been passed. The overall assessment shall be deemed to be “passed with distinction” if none of the mentioned coursework has received a worse assessment than “good” and at least half of the coursework has received the assessment “excellent”. If the continuing education programme in question stipulates a final examination, the assessments of the individual subjects of the overall assessment should also be taken into account when determining the overall assessment.

(8d) Paragraph 8a shall also apply mutatis mutandis when determining the overall assessment in jointly arranged teacher qualification programmes (Section 54e of the Universities Act) and to any complementary programmes for the extension of teacher qualification programmes (Section 54b and Section 54c of the Universities Act), as well as to joint study programmes (Section 54d of the Universities Act) unless special provisions state otherwise.
(9) Where the curriculum stipulates that modular examinations or overall examinations must be taken, students shall be entitled to register to sit an examination within the established registration period with the Rector of Studies. The Rector of Studies must comply with the registration if the student has proven that they fulfil the registration requirements stipulated within the curriculum. If the registration is not complied with, the Rector of Studies shall decide about the registration of the student by providing notification.

(10) Students shall be entitled to submit applications along with the registration regarding the examiner (Section 59, Paragraph 1, Line 13 of the Universities Act 2002). Doctoral programmes conclude with a public viva. A viva is a final examination in front of an examination committee; regulations concerning the viva are set out in the curriculum. Regulations from Section 12, Paragraphs 5 and 7 shall be applied mutatis mutandis. Examiners are to be appointed in accordance with Section 12, Paragraphs 2 and 3. Examiners are to be appointed in accordance with Section 12, Paragraphs 2 and 3; membership of the examination committee must include at least one reviewer. Students can propose examiners. The supervisor is a non-voting member of the examination committee.

(2) The following version of Paragraph 2 shall apply to students who were admitted on Doctoral degree programmes after the 2018/19 winter semester (cf. Section 25, Paragraph 25). For students who were admitted prior to the 2018/19 winter semester, Paragraph 2 shall be used in the previously applicable version (see above).

Section 14 Examination dates, registration for examinations and regulation on bringing credits forward

(1) The establishment of examination dates must take place in such a way that it is possible for the students to comply with the duration of study specified in the curricula. In any case, examination dates for examinations that are carried out in the form of a one-off examination shall be determined for the beginning, middle and end of each semester. The Rector of Studies shall be able to delegate the establishment of examination dates for lecture examinations to the teachers of the lectures. The examination dates shall be laid out in the electronic course registration system (ZEUS). Examinations can also be held at the start and end of periods in which lectures are not being held.

(2) A period of at least two weeks shall be established for the registration for examinations. This must expire at least five weeks before the examination date in the case of vivas and comprehensive doctoral examinations, at least three weeks before the examination date in the case of examinations before a committee and at least two weeks before the examination date in the case of modular examinations. For lecture examinations, the registration period must expire one week prior to the examination date at the earliest. The Rector of Studies shall be able to delegate the establishment of registration periods for lecture examinations to the teachers of the lectures.

(3) Additional individual deadline agreements between the students and the examiners are permitted.

(4) Students shall be notified of the examiners and the examination dates in a suitable way at the latest two weeks prior to the examination date. Examiners who are unable to attend are permitted to arrange representation.

(5) Students shall be entitled to deregister from the examinations (lecture examinations, modular examinations, overall examinations) up until 48 hours prior to the time of the examination without specifying a reason. Deregistration shall be carried out in the electronic course registration system (ZEUS). In the event that the candidate does not take the examination without deregistering within the appropriate period of notice, the examination shall not be assessed and shall not count towards the number of examination attempts. However, students who were not inhibited from deregistering due to a valid reason can be banned from sitting this examination for a period of up to six weeks in the case of oral examinations or comprehensive examinations before a committee. The examiner or the chair of the examination committee must lift this examination ban if the student proves that the deregistration was due to a valid reason.

(6) If a student terminates the examination without valid reason, the examination shall be failed. If the existence of a significant reason is not immediately affirmed by the examiner or the chair of the examination committee, the Rector of Studies must establish by providing notification – on the request of the student and after consulting the examiner or the chair of the examination committee – of whether a valid reason exists. The request must be made within two weeks after the termination. If the Rector of Studies establishes that there is a valid reason, the examination shall not be assessed and shall also not count towards the number of resits.

(7) For all programmes of study with an orientation period within the meaning of Section 66 of the Universities Act, additional courses worth up to 22 ECTS credits may be taken prior to completing the orientation period. For teacher qualification programmes carried out in cooperation, any regulations established in the curriculum shall apply in this regard.

Section 15 Examination resits

(1) Students shall be entitled to resit failed examinations, which are carried out in the form of a one-off examination, up to three times. The second resit of a failed examination shall be held on the request of the student before a committee; this shall also apply to the third resit. Section 12 shall apply mutatis mutandis with regard to the appointment of the examination committee and the assessment of the resit.

(2) Comprehensive examinations must be repeated in full if more than half of the subjects examined have been failed. In all other cases, only failed subjects need to be repeated.

Section 16 Suspension of studies

Students shall be entitled to submit a suspension application to the Rector of Studies on the basis of reasons stated in Section 67, Paragraph 1 of the Universities Act or for other important reasons (e.g. social or family matters, practical work outside a compulsory work placement or work experience abroad). It is the student’s responsibility to ensure that they provide credible evidence to support their suspension application. The Rector of Studies shall make a decision on the application within two weeks.

Section 17 Changing a course

Upon a reasoned request from a student on a Bachelor’s, Master’s or Diploma degree programme, the Rector of Studies shall be able, after consulting the Programme Director, to authorise courses constituting no more than ten percent of the total ECTS credits of the study programme to be replaced by other programme-specific courses in order to enable students to set their own individual focus, as long as the objective of academic training in the study programme in question is not compromised as a result.

Section 17a Joint writing of the Bachelor’s thesis

Several students shall be allowed to work in collaboration on a topic, provided that the contribution of each individual student can be assessed separately and their individual achievements are commensurate with the requirements of a Bachelor’s thesis. To ensure each student’s contribution can be assessed separately, the individual parts of the paper must each be written by one student, who must be explicitly named. However, the overall topic must be treated jointly, and the nature of the collaboration between the students must be explained. This also applies if work is submitted separately.

Section 18 Master’s and Diploma theses

(1) The topic of the Master’s or Diploma thesis is to be taken from the subjects established in the curriculum. The student shall be entitled to propose the topic or choose the topic from a number of suggestions made by the available supervisors.

(2) Academic staff with authorisation to teach (venia docendi), whose main occupation within the meaning of Section 100, Paragraph 3 in connection with Paragraph 4 of the Universities Act is based at the University of Klagenfurt, shall be entitled and also obliged, in accordance with their other work at the university, to supervise and assess Master’s and Diploma theses from the subject they are authorised to teach. Furthermore, this right shall also be granted to persons who have been granted teaching authority by the University of Klagenfurt in accordance with Section 103 of the Universities Act. Emeritus professors and retired professors shall be entitled to supervise and assess Diploma and Master’s theses in accordance with Section 104 of the Universities Act. If required, the Rector of Studies shall also be able to entrust suitable academic staff in possession of a doctoral degree with the supervision and assessment of Master’s and Diploma theses from their area of research. The student shall be entitled to choose a supervisor in accordance with the options available.

(2a) Supervision by two persons who are authorised to supervise shall be permissible on a case-by-case basis, where there is good reason to do so (interdisciplinary focus of the topic). The appointment of a second supervisor shall be carried out if the thesis is being written within the framework of a joint, double or multiple degree programme and a second supervisor is provided for in the contract. The provisions in the statute shall otherwise apply equally to the second supervisor.

(3) In justified cases, the Rector of Studies can, after consulting the subject representatives, also entrust persons with a relevant authorisation to teach from a recognised Austrian or international university or another equivalent institution with the supervision and assessment of Diploma and Master’s theses.
(4) The topic and the supervisor of the Master’s or Diploma thesis must be approved by the Rector of Studies. The application must be made by the student prior to starting work. The Rector of Studies must make a decision about the application within two months after receiving it. A rejection must be made in the form of an official decision. Until the thesis is submitted (Paragraph 5), the student shall be permitted to change the supervisor.

(4a) The Rector of Studies may allow several students to work on a topic jointly, provided that the contribution of each individual student can be assessed separately (Section 81, Paragraph 3 of the Universities Act) and their individual achievements are commensurate with the requirements of a Master’s or Diploma thesis. To ensure each student’s contribution can be assessed separately, the individual parts of the paper must each be written by one student, who must be explicitly named. However, the overall topic must be treated jointly, and the nature of the collaboration between the students must be explained. This also applies if work is submitted separately.

(5) The completed Master’s or Diploma thesis must be submitted to the Rector of Studies in electronic format. On the request of the supervisor, the author must provide them with a bound copy of the thesis. Submission to the library shall take place exclusively in electronic format.

(6) Supervisors shall have two months from the date of submission to assess a Master’s or Diploma thesis. If the Master’s or Diploma thesis is not assessed within the appointed period of time, the Rector of Studies must assign the Master’s or Diploma thesis to another person authorised to provide supervision in accordance with Paragraph 2 or 3, upon the request of the student.

(7) In the event that two supervisors have been appointed in accordance with Paragraph 2a, the Master’s or Diploma thesis must be assessed by both of them. If one of the supervisors fails the thesis, the Rector of Studies shall have the thesis assessed by a third person who meets the requirements of Paragraph 2. In the event of two failed assessments, the result shall be a fail. In all other cases, the assessment shall be made on the basis of the proposed grades. In the event of differing proposed grades, the arithmetic average of the proposed assessments shall be taken, whereby results greater than x.5 shall be rounded up. For joint programmes of study (joint, double or multiple degree programmes), any regulations made in the respective cooperation agreement shall apply in this regard.

(8) The final piece of written work (Master’s thesis) intended in the curriculum of a university degree at Master’s level is an academic paper that demonstrates the student’s ability to achieve adequate standards of content and methodology when independently addressing academic topics. The legal provisions for Master’s theses to be written in degree programmes shall apply to these papers.

Section 19 Theses (admission prior to the WS 2018/19)

The following version of Section 19 shall apply to students who were admitted on Doctoral degree programmes prior to the 2018/19 winter semester. For students who are admitted after the 2018/19 winter semester, Section 19 shall be used in the amended version (see below), cf. Section 25, Paragraph 25.

(1) Through the thesis, the student must demonstrate that they are able to go beyond the demands of a Diploma or Master’s thesis and make an independent contribution to solving problems in current academic research.

(2) Academic staff with authorisation to teach (venia docendi), whose main occupation within the meaning of Section 100, Paragraph 3 in connection with Paragraph 4 of the Universities Act is based at the University of Klagenfurt, shall be entitled and also obliged, in accordance with their other work at the university, to supervise theses from the subject they are authorised to teach. Furthermore, this right shall also be granted to persons who have been granted teaching authority by the University of Klagenfurt in accordance with Section 103 of Universities Act. Emeritus professors and retired professors shall be entitled to supervise theses in accordance with Section 104 of the Universities Act. Supervision by two or more persons shall be permissible.

(3) In justified cases, the Rector of Studies can, after consulting the subject representatives, also entrust persons with a relevant authorisation to teach from a recognised Austrian or international university or another equivalent institution with the supervision of theses.

(4) In order to ensure the quality of the thesis project and to advise the Rector of Studies, doctorate advisory committees are to be set up, consisting of three, five or seven persons authorised to act as supervisors in accordance with the first sentence of Paragraph 2. The members of the respective doctorate advisory committee shall be appointed by the Rector of Studies for a period of three years on the basis of recommendations from the curricular committee responsible for the doctoral programme. The curricular committee shall make these recommendations after consulting the faculty conference(s) responsible for the subject. The various subjects of a doctoral programme should be considered appropriately.

(4a) For each doctoral programme, a doctorate advisory committee shall be set up. The responsibility of the respective doctorate advisory committee shall comprise the fields of the thesis that are relevant to it. Thesis areas are those fields covered by the Master’s degree programmes available at the University of Klagenfurt. Further thesis areas can be established by the Rectorate following consultation with the curricular committee responsible for the doctoral degree programme, if sufficient supervisory competence is available at The University of Klagenfurt.

(4b) For the doctoral programme that concludes with the doctoral degree “Doctor of Philosophy”, several – but at most four – doctorate advisory committees can be set up. The respective field of responsibility shall be established by the Rector of Studies on the basis of recommendations of the curricular committee responsible for the doctoral programme. The curricular committee shall make these recommendations after consulting the faculty conference(s) responsible for the subject.
Thematic doctoral programmes offer doctoral students structured supervision on a specific topic. On a thematic doctoral programme, students take a suite of complementary courses focusing on one main area of research. Doctoral programmes are set up on the request of several persons authorised to provide supervision and are specified more precisely by means of a founding statement. The persons authorised to provide supervision choose a spokesperson from their circle. They shall have the task of coordinating the doctoral programme. When a student applies for one of these programmes, admission shall be decided by majority vote by the admissions tutors for the programme. To apply, the student must have received admission onto a doctoral programme and approval from their supervisor(s).

The thesis project is to be submitted in writing by the student to the Rector of Studies. After obtaining a written statement from the relevant doctorate advisory committee, the Rector of Studies shall decide whether or not to approve the thesis project. Section 18, Paragraph 4a shall apply on the condition that the Rector of Studies makes their decision on the basis of a statement by the doctorate advisory committee. In any case, approval of the thesis project is a prerequisite for the conclusion of a thesis agreement, which establishes and documents the concrete form of the doctoral degree programme. The curriculum provides further details. The thesis agreement shall be concluded between the student and the supervisor and requires the approval of the Rector of Studies. The unilateral termination or significant amendment of the thesis agreement also require approval by the Rector of Studies.

The completed thesis must be submitted to the Rector of Studies in electronic and written format.

The Rector of Studies determines two persons with relevant teaching authority (venia docendi) or equivalent qualifications as reviewers, on the recommendation of the doctorate advisory committee. At least one of the two reviewers must be external to the university, i.e. someone who is not a member of the University of Klagenfurt, within the meaning of Section 94, Paragraph 1 of the Universities Act. The thesis is to be assessed by the examiners within a maximum period of four months.

If one of the reviewers fails the thesis, the Rector of Studies shall have the thesis assessed by a third reviewer. This reviewer must assess the thesis within four months.

If two or three reviewers have been brought in and fail the thesis, the result shall be a fail. In all other cases, the assessment of the thesis shall be made on the basis of the proposed grades. In the event of differing proposed grades, the arithmetic average of the proposed assessments shall be taken, whereby results greater than x.5 shall be rounded up.

For theses that are submitted after 01.10.2018 (cf. Section 25, Paragraph 25):

Theses awarded a pass grade shall be delivered to the libraries named in Section 86, Paragraphs 1 and 2 of the Universities Act in electronic format only. Any thesis awarded a pass grade shall also be published in an open electronic repository. The reasons outlined in Section 86, Paragraph 4 of the Universities Act for restricting access to a thesis include publication by a professional publisher. If an application is successful, access to a thesis will be restricted for a maximum of three years.

Section 19 Theses (admission after the WS 2018/19)

The following version of Paragraph 19 shall apply to students who were admitted on Doctoral degree programmes after the 2018/19 winter semester (cf. Section 25, Paragraph 25). In order to ensure quality, at the time of admission onto a doctoral degree programme, a provisional letter of support for the thesis must be provided by at least one supervisor.

(3) In justified cases, the Rector of Studies can, after consulting the subject representatives, also entrust persons with a relevant authorisation to teach from a recognised Austrian or international university or another equivalent institution with the supervision of theses. At least one supervisor must belong to the group of persons pursuant to Section 2, first sentence.

(4) In order to ensure the quality of the thesis project and to advise the Rector of Studies, doctorate advisory committees are to be set up, consisting of three, five or seven persons authorised to act as supervisors in accordance with the first sentence of Paragraph 2. The various subjects of a doctoral programme should be considered appropriately.

(4a) For each doctoral programme, a doctorate advisory committee shall be set up. The responsibility of the respective doctorate advisory committee shall comprise the fields of the thesis that are relevant to it. The respective field of responsibility shall be established by the Rector of Studies on the basis of recommendations of the curricular committee responsible for the doctoral programme. The curricular committee shall make these recommendations after consulting the faculty conference(s) responsible for the subject.

(4c) Thematic doctoral programmes offer doctoral students structured supervision on a specific topic. On a thematic doctoral programme, students take a range of complementary courses focusing on one main area of research. Doctoral programmes are set up on the request of several persons authorised to provide supervision and are specified more precisely by means of a founding statement. The persons authorised to provide supervision choose a spokesperson from their circle. They shall have the task of coordinating the doctoral programme. When a student applies for one of these programmes, admission is decided by majority vote by the admissions tutors for the programme. To apply, the student must have received admission onto a doctoral programme and approval from the supervisor and mentor.

(5) The thesis project is to be submitted in writing by the student to the Rector of Studies. After obtaining a written statement from the relevant doctorate advisory committee, the Rector of Studies shall decide whether or not to approve the thesis project. Section 18, Paragraph 4a shall apply on condition that the Rector of Studies decides on the basis of a statement by the doctorate advisory committee. In any case, approval of the thesis project is a prerequisite for the conclusion of a thesis agreement, which establishes and documents the concrete form of the doctoral degree programme. The curriculum provides further details. The thesis agreement shall be concluded between the student and the supervisor and mentor and requires the approval of the Rector of Studies. The unilateral termination or significant amendment of the thesis agreement also require approval by the Rector of Studies.

(6) The completed thesis must be submitted to the Rector of Studies in electronic and written format.

(7) The Rector of Studies determines two persons with relevant teaching authority (venia docendi) or equivalent qualifications as reviewers, on the recommendation of the doctorate advisory committee. The appointment of a supervisor or a mentor as a reviewer for the thesis shall only be permitted in one-off cases. At least one of the two reviewers must be external to the university, i.e. someone who is not a member of the University of Klagenfurt, within the meaning of Section 94, Paragraph 1 of the Universities Act. The thesis is to be assessed by the examiners within a maximum period of four months.

(8) If one of the reviewers fails the thesis, the Rector of Studies shall have the thesis assessed by a third reviewer. This reviewer must assess the thesis within four months.
(9) If two or three reviewers have been brought in and fail the thesis, the result shall be a fail. In all other cases, the assessment of the thesis shall be made on the basis of the proposed grades. In the event of differing proposed grades, the arithmetic average of the proposed assessments shall be taken, whereby results greater than x.5 shall be rounded up.

(10) Theses awarded a pass grade shall be delivered to the libraries named in Section 86, Paragraphs 1 and 2 of the Universities Act in electronic format only. Any thesis awarded a pass grade shall also be published in an open electronic repository. The reasons outlined in Section 86, Paragraph 4 of the Universities Act for restricting access to a thesis include publication by a professional publisher. If an application is successful, access to a thesis will be restricted for a maximum of three years.

Section 19a Measures in the event of plagiarism or any other falsification of academic performance

(1) Plagiarism and any other falsification of academic performance within the framework of written seminar and examination papers, Bachelor’s theses and academic papers (Master’s and Diploma papers, theses) must be reported to the Rectorate.

(2) If plagiarism or falsification of academic performance takes place during the supervision phase within the framework of Master’s and Diploma papers and theses, the supervisor shall be entitled to suspend the supervision.

(3) If plagiarism or the falsification of academic performance becomes known during the course of the assessment, papers are to be assessed as “insufficient” in accordance with Paragraph 1. If the paper was not written within the framework of a course with ongoing assessment, the whole course is to be assessed as “insufficient”.

(4) In the event of serious and deliberate plagiarism or any other serious and deliberate falsification of academic performance within the framework of Bachelor’s, Master’s and Diploma papers as well as theses, the Rectorate can exclude the student from the programme of study by decree for the duration of a maximum of two semesters.

(5) The provisions for Master’s papers are to be applied for an academic paper (“Master’s thesis”) written within the framework of a university degree.

(2) In the application for nostrification to the Rector of Studies in accordance with the provisions of Article 90 of the Universities Act, the applicant must specify the programme of study in Austria that is comparable with the international programme of study they have completed and the desired Austrian degree title.

(3) The proof to be attached to the application shall be determined in a decree of the Rector of Studies.

(4) The Rector of Studies must check, taking into account the curriculum applicable at the time of the application, whether the international programme of study was structured in such a way that it is equivalent to the Austrian programme of degree specified in the application with regard to the result of the complete course. A sample test is also permissible as proof, in order to obtain more detailed knowledge about the contents of the international programme of study.

(5) If the programmes of study are equivalent in principle, and only individual additions are missing for full equivalence, the applicant is to be admitted onto the programme of study by notification as a non-degree student and the student is to be instructed to sit examinations and/or to produce an academic paper to achieve equivalence within an appropriate period, to be determined in the decision.

(6) The applicant must carry out this additional work at the University of Klagenfurt. Provisions on the recognition of examinations and theses and coursework do not apply.

(7) The Rector of Studies will notify the student of the outcome of their application. This notification must specify the Austrian degree that is equivalent to the international degree and which Austrian academic title the applicant is entitled to use in place of their international academic title as a result of the qualification recognition process. A copy of this notification must be provided on the certificate supplied as evidence of holding an international degree.

With continuing education programmes that relate to teacher training, a statement from the Head of the School of Education should be attached.

(5) On the basis of the decision of the Rectorate, the CEC proponent shall prepare a draft curriculum taking into consideration the provisions of Article 22 and the sample curriculum. The following documents should be attached to this:
